

The Paracelsus Clinic has been treating tumorous disease for over fifteen years with Paracelsus Biological Medicine. The intensive Paracelsus Cancer Treatment Healthcare Program provides a way into the biological and integrative treatment of malignant diseases and lays the foundation for follow-up treatment by your GP or specialist in biological therapies. The Program is a unique combination of many different natural forms of therapy, some of which have already been widely tested and proven.

The Healthcare Program is an extremely individual course of therapy, ideally lasting three weeks, which is suitable for patients with malignant diseases at any stage and is also very beneficial for patients who have already received or are still receiving conventional, orthodox treatment for their cancer.

We see the best results in the following tumors:

- ◆ Prostate cancer
- ◆ Breast cancer
- ◆ Malignant tumors of the blood and lymphatic system (malignant lymphoma, chronic leukemia, polycythemia, thrombocytosis)
- ◆ Bladder cancer (particularly in the interval between courses of therapy)
- ◆ Tumors of the throat, pharynx and nasal regions
- ◆ Colon cancer
- ◆ Lung cancer

Our type of treatment is founded on a view of disease that differs from that of conventional medicine. This is described below. However, it is important to know that all PBM doctors have undergone thorough training in conventional medicine and know a great deal about the various types of conventional medical treatment for cancer.

An Introduction to the PBM View of Cancer

The incidence of degenerative and malignant disease is already frighteningly high, and is increasing rapidly. In our grandparents' era, only one person in ten was threatened by a malignant disease; in our day and age this has risen to one in three. Although modern medicine has made incredible progress in the treatment of acute illness, malignant disease poses vexing problems for both doctors and patients. In many ways, cancers have taken the place of the plagues of the Middle Ages; modern physicians are frequently just as helpless and perplexed in treating the disease (and the side effects of its conventional treatment) as their medieval forbears. This perplexity is in part due to the fact that modern medicine is generally more focussed on curing cancer, rather than discovering the reasons for its occurrence.

Modern medicine tackles cancer using radical methods based on research from the nineteenth century: surgery, radiation treatment, and chemotherapy. In individual cases these are certainly sensible and even necessary (in the case of certain metastatic processes and in acute lymphoma and leukemia). However, in other cancers (breast cancer, metastatic spread in the liver from tumors of the large intestine, prostate cancer), we have observed that these methods are ineffective over the long term.

In conventional medical treatment it is often forgotten that cancer has many causes. The road to the point where cells degenerate and react against their human host is a long, very individual one. At the time when the diagnosis of cancer is made, each patient has already traveled a long distance down this road. Without substantial changes to the biological environment within that created the disease, the patient cannot retrace his/her steps. The low proportion of long-term successes and the often poor quality of life for people suffering from cancer require that we change our way of thinking.

The Causes of Cancer

In the PBM treatment of cancer, the first priority is to treat the overloaded “ground system” (the matrix or mesenchyme) of the cancer patient. This is the vital system of lymph, containing sugar and protein molecules, which surrounds all the cells of the human body. All exchanges (nutrition coming in, waste going out) between the cell and the rest of the body take place in this “soup”. If the integrity of the system suffers, there can be no healthy or orderly cell growth. The wrong diet or way of life, insufficient intake of essential substances, contamination with heavy metals or other toxins, and chronic areas of inflammation or disturbance (teeth with root canals, scarred tonsils) result in loss of function of this important system.

The immune system is always badly affected in cancer patients, and effective cancer treatment demands restoration of the immunological functions of the intestines. The intestine is an extremely important immune organ; its walls are home to approximately 80% of all lymph cells, and the intestinal bacteria are important detoxifiers. Tests carried out in the past few years prove that people with cancer have inadequate detoxification functions, and serious pathological changes in the intestine and/or immune system. For this reason, PBM treatment includes change of diet and bowel treatment.

Minerals, vitamins, and trace elements are regenerative substances in the body; they protect the tissues and may even inhibit cancer cells. The uptake of these substances is considerably hindered by modern nutrition and environmental influences. PBM diagnosis includes evaluation of individual need for these substances.

Heavy metals and toxic substances are carcinogenic, and have been found in enormous quantities in cancerous tissue. The diagnosis and excretion of heavy metals, as well as organic toxins such as insecticides, preservatives, and solvents, is an important part of the Paracelsus Tumor Healthcare Program.

Cancer and Attitude

By now, most Americans are accustomed to the idea that there is a relationship between disease and the individual’s emotional state. We all know what it’s like to get sick after a period of stress. The patient’s mental state can have a considerable influence on the development and progress of cancers. If the cancer is to be overcome, it is not enough for the patient to passively undergo treatment. The patient must generate and cultivate impulses for healing in his/her emotional realm, as well as receiving treatment in the physical realm. The ancient knowledge that the state of the spirit determines the state of the body is slowly beginning to take its place again in modern medicine. PBM physicians have developed a psychotherapy method that integrates the meridian system of Chinese Medicine with the work of Dr. Hamer to reveal the “Cancer Life Theme” for the patient. This unique psychological and energetic approach includes additional modalities:

- ◆ Kinesiology with Mr. Wolfgang Haas
- ◆ Mr. Michael Falkner’s Eurythmy and future-oriented Simonton-Psychotherapy
- ◆ Energetic work with our healer, Mr. Peter Graus

Paracelsus Biological Medicine Cancer Therapy

The cancer therapy offered at the Paracelsus Clinic is therefore based on the following indispensable points:

1. Nutritional therapy with only essential substances. A change to food rich in alkaline foods and consistent avoidance of contaminated modern foods which support disease
2. A diet that is completely free of allergenic foods. These are tested on an individual basis and the patient is given advice on nutrition that is appropriate to him/her. People with cancer almost always have food allergies, very frequently to the protein in cow’s milk and/or hen’s eggs, less frequently to wheat products. As a precaution, therefore, these are omitted completely during the Healthcare Program. Food allergies put a tremendous strain on the immune system and as a result indirectly support the development of cancer.
3. Intensive and individually adapted orthomolecular therapy incorporating modern scientific findings regarding vitamins, minerals, and trace elements. This includes, for example, deacidification therapy in the form of alkaline infusions in which relatively high doses of cell-activating trace elements and vitamins are given.
4. Isopathic milieu therapy according to Professor Enderlein: this means the treatment of factors which support tumors and which are present in the blood plasma and blood cells in detectable amounts. Here darkfield microscopy in particular is used to make a diagnosis. Despite widespread admiration for Professor Enderlein’s work, Paracelsus Clinics are the only clinics to integrate his treatment into their cancer program.
5. Treatment of the patient’s blood with ultraviolet radiation and ozone oxygen therapy in order to strengthen the immune system. Both treatments support the circulation and activity of the healthy blood and intracellular tissue and their ability to regenerate. At the same time, the detoxification of toxic substances (following chemotherapy and similar treatments) can be considerably improved.
6. Systemic detoxification measures are supported by therapies that specifically support detoxification of the intestine; these reverse the disruption of the acid/base balance, which always occurs in cancer patients. Colonic irrigation and re-florisation restore the important intestinal immune system.
7. Whole body and local hyperthermia can increase the body’s defense mechanisms. Fever therapy, which has been known since ancient times, has been given new impetus with the introduction of modern techniques. Professor von Ardenne of ?? has shown that cancer cells have a reduced tolerance to heat. Heat therapy can kill off tumor cells without affecting neighboring healthy tissue. In fact, healthy tissue and healthy defense cells react to elevated temperatures with an increase in activity. The number of lymph cells and so-called macrophages increase greatly, while malignant and sick cells die off. The infrared sauna is also used to produce heat at a depth of five to eight centimeters, simulating the metabolism and detoxification.

8. Detoxification therapies with heavy metal excretion therapies, infrared sauna, and dental treatment.
9. Mistletoe and enzyme therapies: since the investigations of Rudolf Steiner, the value of mistletoe therapy has been well known. Steiner's conclusions have been supported by research findings of the last decade. PBM has developed a unique type of mistletoe therapy which adds additional substances to the tried and tested mistletoe remedies, destroying cancer cells and stimulating the immune system even more effectively.
10. Homeopathy: cancer is caused in part by an energetic and constitutional weakness, which can be influenced by individual high potency Homeopathy. PBM has further developed a special technique of complex and single remedy homeopathy.

By consistently carrying out these measures, it is possible not only to stop the progress of tumor disease, but also to set healing processes in motion. Patients who have already undergone conventional treatment for tumors will recover more quickly and need less medication under a properly conceived and executed course of holistic treatment.

Sequence of Events in the Program

The procedures described above make it necessary to carry out a specific, detailed examination. We do not know all the possible causes that may lead to cancer. But like a puzzle, the more parts of the patient we know, the clearer the picture appears, and the more targeted our treatment can be.

The Healthcare Program therefore includes several stages.

- ◆ Diagnosis: at Paracelsus Clinic, we search for foci of interference, check the acid/base balance and blood vitality. Meridian connections are evaluated using thermoregulation diagnosis, and the vitality of the cells and antioxidant levels are assessed. A special test of the vegetative tone shows us the strength of the patient's "recovery system": the parasympathetic nervous system.
- ◆ Change of Diet: as described above, the diet of cancer patients must be rich in essential nutrients, but low in animal protein and free of cow's milk products. We offer a special diet that is rich in roughage and proven supporting factors (green tea, vegetable juices). We specifically support liver and kidney detoxification and prescribe polyunsaturated fatty acids.
- ◆ Supporting Treatment of Foci of Interference and Pain: neural therapy with homeopathic and isopathic healing remedies is administered, and tissues are insufflated with CO₂.
- ◆ Physical and Detoxification Treatments: colonic irrigation, local and whole body hyperthermia, infrared saunas, infusions of bases and vital substances, infusions for the excretion of heavy metals, mistletoe therapy, massage, cupping treatments, lymph drainage are all used.

Intensive treatment with biological healing remedies is begun and can be continued at home after the Healthcare Program. In special cases we carry out low-dose chemotherapy developed according to Dr. Rau's method. Targeted injection therapy around the site of the tumor with substances which restrict the growth of tumors may also be administered.

Cancer is a manifestation of a chronic disharmony that starts long before the diagnosis. To set the patient back on the road to health, the Healthcare Program should last for at least two weeks, and preferably three to four. It has been shown that this program can regenerate the badly disturbed biological terrain and immune system of cancer patients. This treatment can be a real turning point away from illness and back to health.
